| Describe the last difficult “goodbye” you said.

To my two childhood friends whom I thought they would come till my last...I knew i was too depended and lot of issues made us separate... finally it was my decision to be away from them... because at some point their presence made me ill...right now I'm perfectly ok with those separation same time i couldn't find that emotional bonding friendship with none of anybody..."sometimes some Goodbyes are needed to make us strong and lead out life without dependency".
